New program prepares leaders and managers, in every organization type, to know how best to manage risks and integrate strategy into their operations

(Purchase, NY: July 11, 2018) The Institute for Managing Risk (IMR), within the Manhattanville School of Business (MSB), has announced a new Professional Certificate program - Effective Enterprise Risk

Management. This certificate program will help managers to understand and oversee how risks are viewed across their organizations and help to create a coherent, integrated flow of information for decision makers and line managers.

The program will also teach tools and techniques for professionals in every field who need to address their department's risk or need to assess and report their risk to senior management, including risks associated with Enterprise, Human Resources, Operations, Financial, Board Reporting, and IT/Cyber Risk. In the wake of cyber-attacks, natural disasters, and public relation crises, it is more important than ever for organizations to have clear training and policies regarding risk-reward decisions.

"Growth, financial stability, and successful innovation require risk taking and risk management," said Michele Braun, Director of the Institute for Managing Risk. "We will address strategic management, international standards, reporting and tracking, and the all-important role of corporate culture."
